SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. About the end of September a Yugoslav Delegation of high-ranking officers, headed by Lieutenant General Velimir Terzic, Commander of Third Army based at Novi Sad, were sent to Moscow to appeal to the Soviet Union to send new planes, tanks and arms to Yugoslavia.
2. Moscow rejected all their requests. The Delegation subsequently sent a special letter to Marshal Stalin but there was no response.
3. Later, however, Moscow approved a shipment of a limited quantity of arms. The Soviet arms representative, Dimitri Manuilski, was sent to Belgrade to conclude a formal agreement. About 6 October Manuilski was notified to return immediately to Moscow and cease negotiations.
4. This appears to be the last Yugoslav attempt at a reconciliation with Moscow. A shipment of new arms was to have been exchanged for obsolete arms which allegedly comprise 45 percent of the present Yugoslav stock.
